Concerning section V.:

1. An ostomy device and an ostomy collecting bag as defined in the preamble of the independent claims 1 and 9, respectively, is disclosed in EP-A-0 793 951 (D1).

The problem of the invention was to provide an ostomy device and an ostomy bag providing an adhesive coupling between the body portion and the bag such that deformations and tearing out of flange material of the body part and the bag are prevented.

This problem is solved in that a further flexible layer is placed between the adhesive and the flange of the bag with the tensile strength of the flexible layer being lower than the tensile strength of the flange of the base plate and the flange of the bag, said flexible bag having a yield strength exceeding the adhesive strength of the adhesive.

These features are novel and they cannot be derived in an obvious manner from the cited documents.

Moreover, such an ostomy device and collecting bag are industrially applicable such that all the requirements of Art. 33(2)-(4) PCT are met.

2. The dependent claims 2-8 define particular embodiments of the invention according to claim 1 and claim 10 defines the utilisation of the bag according to claim 9. Thus, these claims also meet the requirements of Art. 33(2)-(4) PCT.

3. D1 should in addition have been indicated in the description (Rule 5.1 (a) (ii)).
